

14. Keys to Enjoyment?

Jose wanted permission to practice his song at Grandmother's house. "Can I please use your piano?" he asked. "I have to practice for next Saturdays childrens' concert." Grandma was glad to oblige but soon regretted it. "My goodness, you seem to have forgotten were to find the C sharp," she commented. "Oh, here it is," he said. "Its the white key next to the C." He continued to murder the song. "Say, this surely is funner than doing homework!" he said brightly. Grandma gave him a pained look and said "At least it's fun for you."

The piano keyboard has repeating sets of seven basic notes. To play the sharp for C, D, F, G, or A, you hit the black key to its right.

Find the 8 errors in this activity. There are no errors in the illustration or the caption.
